The research explores the technopolitical usage of social media by FridaysForFuture activists in Rome and their social representations on climate change. Supervisor: F. Comunello. The activities were financed by the Fund for Early Research Projects (type 2) of Sapienza University of Rome, through the project entitled "Change has come. Teen climate activism and social media usages by the Italian FridaysForFuture activists". June 2018/October 2019– Social media usages, sexist (self)stereotypes and attitudes towards gender violence: an exploratory study among Italian young people Research Fellowship (Dep. of Human Sciences, LUMSA University). The research explores whether and how Italian young people perceive violent behaviour within intimate relationships that develop through social media ('digital dating abuse'). Supervisor: C. Corradi. The research grant was funded by the LUMSA University as part of the activities of the

European project "Lights4Violence" (funded by the European Commission Directorate-General for Justice and Consumer Rights, Programme for Equality and Citizens' Violence against Women 2016: grant agreement no. 776905). Responsible for the Italian unit: C. Corradi.

Throughout the duration of the contract, I also participated in the research (survey) and intervention (training and audio-visual production) activities planned by the European project and conducted with male and female secondary school students to promote protective factors against teen dating violence. I was also the project's communication manager, responsible for the newsletter and social media activities.

May 2018/July 2019 - Ageism and social media through the lens of media ideologies: an exploratory survey Participation in the research project funded by LUMSA University (Scientific Coordinator: F. Comunello), within the COST Action ISCH IS1402 on "Ageism - a multi-national, interdisciplinary perspective". The project investigates the generational use of social media and the interaction between age-related stereotypes and digital media practices.

May 2017/December 2019 - Femicide and/in Social Media. The #NiUnaMenos case study

Principal investigator of a self-funded project conducted together with F. Comunello and C. Corradi (LUMSA University, Rome, Italy). Through the analysis of Twitter conversations containing the hashtag #NiUnaMenos, the research explores the grassroots capacity for political convocation and mobilisation of femicide and the technopolitical usage of social media in Argentina.

April 2016/October 2017 - The indigenous peoples' media dealing with the Law on Audiovisual Communication Services: experiences, contradictions, challenges.

Postdoctoral research funded by CONICET (Consejo Nacional de Investigaciones Científicas y Técnicas, Argentina) and carried out at the National University of Quilmes (Argentina) as Principal investigator (Supervisor: M. Becerra). The research accounts for the decolonial work carried out by indigenous communities in Argentina through/in their radio and television stations, under the application of Law 26.522 on Audiovisual Communication Services.

March/September 2015 - Community communication in Misiones (Argentina) under Law 26.522 on Audiovisual Communication Services.

Post-doctoral research funded by AMIDILA (Academic Mobility for Inclusive Development in Latin America - Erasmus Mundus Action 2) and carried out at the National University of Misiones (Argentina) as Principal Investigator (Supervisor: D. Baranger). The project aims to characterise community media and evaluate the implementation of Argentine Law 26.522 on audiovisual communication services in the province of Misiones (Argentina), focusing on the experiences of grassroots organisations, schools and indigenous communities.

2014 - Interactions with and through mobile phone among the elders

Participation in the self-funded project coordinated by F. Comunello, (LUMSA University, Rome), S. Mulargia (Sapienza, University of Rome) and M. Fernández-Ardèvol (IN3-Universitat Oberta de Catalonia). Comparative analysis of mobile phone usage practices in the daily lives of Italian elderly people.

March 2013/ November 2015 - Sustainable Water Management in the Mediterranean.

Participation in the project submitted under the first call of the ENPI CBCMED (2007 - 2013) and funded by the EU. SWMed promotes policies to meet water and sanitation needs in Mediterranean countries by reducing water abstraction and improving the quality of water bodies receiving wastewater. Scientific Coordinator: G. Anzera.

2012 - Nautilus 2. Towards the socio-economic integration

Collaboration in the project funded by ERF 2010 - Action 1.2.A. Nautilus 2 improves the Italian asylum system by strengthening counselling, information and cultural mediation activities. Scientific Coordinator: M. Morcellini.

November 2010 / October 2013 - Il bene comune tra scienza e senso comune. Linguaggi, concezioni ed esperienze

Doctoral research project (Supervisors: M. S. Agnoli, P. Marsocci, M. Morcellini, Dep. of Communication and Social Research, Sapienza University of Rome). Literature review on the concept of "common good" and "commons" the fields of Law, Economics, Politics and Communication Sciences; proposal of an explanatory definition of the concept; survey-based research investigating the common sense about the concept by exploring the motivations, opinions and communicative practices of the Roman citizens who voted against the privatisation of the national water service in 2011 (the “Acqua Bene Comune” referendum).
